I went to an activity centre in Cornwall. We did lots of things there – sailing, canoeing, and surfing, too. I wasn't very good at that, but it was great fun. My favourite activity, though, wasn't in the sea. It was the Zip Wire. That was amazing. You stand at the top of a hill on one side of a valley. You hold onto a small bar that's hanging under a long cable. Then you slide down the cable – right across the valley to the bottom of the hill on the other side. It's about 250 metres long. Great!

The best thing about the holiday for me was the fresh air. I live in the middle of Birmingham. It's a big, big city, so it was great to be by the sea for ten days.

The activity centre that I went to was in the Lake District. We did mountain biking, horse riding and archery. I really enjoyed them all, but my favourite thing was raft-building. That was really good fun. We had some big barrels and ropes and pieces of wood, and we had to build a raft with them. There were eight of us in each group. It took a long time to build the raft. Then we all got on it and rowed across the lake. Our group didn't win, but at least we reached the other side. Two of the other rafts didn't. They fell apart. That was really funny to see.

What did I like best about the holiday? I made lots of new friends. We had a lot of fun together and we still chat to each other on the Internet.
